

CORINTHIAN CAPITAL ACQUIRES HAMILTON ENGINEERING

MAY 2012

Corinthian Capital Group, LLC, a leading private equity firm specializing in investments in small and middle market companies, has announced that it has acquired Hamilton Engineering, Inc. and certain affiliates of Hamilton. Hamilton provides world-class engineering, consulting, project management and workforce placement solutions to clients in the energy market. The company is headquartered in Houston, Texas, with offices located in Lafayette, Louisiana, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil and Pune, India.

Hamilton provides diversified drilling and completion services across the oil and gas, conventional and unconventional, and domestic and international energy markets, and has cultivated a strong brand name and market position over a 35-year operating history. The Company also provides exploration optimization and real-time production optimization consulting services through its Exploration and Production Technology Group. With its reputation, technical expertise and well-diversified operations, the company has experienced strong growth as global energy needs have risen and energy development has become more complex.

“This partnership with Corinthian Capital will give us the ability to take our business to the next level of success,” stated Keith Grimes, Chief Executive Officer of Hamilton. “For over thirty years, Hamilton has provided leading engineering and consulting services to a diverse international client base. Working together with Corinthian, I believe we can achieve Hamilton’s highest potential for growth and expansion.”

C. Kenneth Clay, Senior Managing Director of Corinthian Capital said, “Corinthian is pleased to support Hamilton in taking the business to the next stage of its development. We are confident that under the continued leadership of Keith Grimes and the management team, Hamilton will be able to realize even greater success than it has achieved in the past.”
