

CORINTHIAN CAPITAL GROUP ANNOUNCES THE ACQUISITION OF STADCO

JULY 2010

Corinthian Capital Group, LLC, a New York-based private equity firm specializing in investments in small and middle market companies, is pleased to announce the acquisition of STADCO. STADCO, headquartered in Los Angeles, CA, is a leading designer and manufacturer of components and tooling for the space, commercial aerospace and defense industries. The company has positioned itself with an integrated set of capabilities which, coupled with an industry-leading electron beam welding process, provide STADCO the ability to execute large and complex jobs. STADCO has developed an outstanding reputation among a wide range of commercial aerospace and military customers for producing cost-efficient, precision engineered solutions for tooling, assemblies and components.

STADCO is a key supplier of large, flight-critical components on several high-priority commercial and military platforms. Douglas Paletz, President of STADCO, said: "We are looking forward to the opportunity to benefit from Corinthian Capital's expertise in business development and taking our business to the next level in the coming years."

Peter Van Raalte, Senior Managing Director of Corinthian Capital, said: "We are very excited to partner with STADCO's outstanding management team. In conjunction with Corinthian Capital, the company is well positioned to grow in the aerospace tooling and machining markets. Given the strong pipeline of new commercial and military aircraft, STADCO will continue to supply tooling for the next generation of carbon fiber aircraft as well as large machined parts for satellite launch and space exploration."
