

CORINTHIAN CAPITAL ACQUIRES SABRE COMMUNICATIONS

MAY 2006

Corinthian Capital Group, LLC, a New York-based private equity firm specializing in investments in small and middle market companies, has completed the acquisition of Sabre Communications Corp. Sabre Communications, headquartered in Sioux City, Iowa, is a leading designer and manufacturer of towers for the wireless industry. The company's tower structures are used for the placement of communications equipment which transmit signals for wireless, radio and television broadcast, microwave and other communications applications. Sabre Communications is recognized for its quality by the foremost companies in the industry and has a "blue chip" list of customers, including Bechtel Corp., Cingular Wireless, Nextel Companies, T-Mobile, U.S. Cellular Corp., Verizon Wireless, and Western Wireless Corp. In addition to the design and manufacture of guyed and self-supporting towers and wireless monopoles for the communications industry and transmission poles for the power utility industry, the company provides tower-related parts and accessories as well as wireless tower design, engineering and construction services.

"We are excited about our partnership with Corinthian Capital and believe that they can augment Sabre's development and excellent reputation," said James D. Mack, President of Sabre Communications. "Since our shift in the mid-1980's from high-frequency antenna systems and their associated support structures to the manufacture of towers, we have prided ourselves on our ability to provide product customization, quick-turn manufacturing and on-time delivery. Corinthian Capital will deliver the financial and operational proficiency necessary for the continuation and expansion of these operations."

Peter Van Raalte, Senior Managing Director of Corinthian Capital, stated, "Increasing consumer demand for wireless services and the dynamic nature of the wireless industry will drive Sabre Communications' growth. In addition, the company has already begun to establish strategic alliances with major transmission companies, allowing Sabre Communications to capture a greater market share of potential development in the utility industry. With a well-established position in a niche market, we are confident that our partnership will lead Sabre Communications to even greater success."

Corinthian Capital was founded in 2005 to invest in small and middle market companies located primarily in North America. Its principals have completed over 50 acquisitions with a combined total value of over $1.5 billion. Corinthian Capital seeks to invest in unique manufacturing, distribution and service businesses with sales between $50 million and $250 million.
